Misys to Donate I.T. System

By

(October 2006) Misys Healthcare Systems has committed to donate up to $10 million in information technology products to local efforts to share clinical data among provider organizations.

The organizations could include hospitals, physician practices, home health agencies or a combination of these and other provider organizations.

The Raleigh, N.C.-based software vendor is administering the grant program through its recently launched Misys Center for Community Health Leadership. Organizations do not have to be current users of the company's products to be eligible for a grant donation of I.T.

Organizations can submit applications asking for any type of Misys administrative or clinical software for inpatient, outpatient and home health care that they can use to facilitate connectivity. The vendor sells electronic medical records and administrative systems for hospitals, physician practices and home health agencies.

Grant applications are due by Dec. 31 and details are available at misyscenter.com.
