Misys opens $10M health-care IT grant program

Triangle Business Journal - October 11, 2006

Misys Healthcare Systems on Wednesday said its newly launched Center for Community Health Leadership has begun accepting grant applications to help communities across the country adopt electronic health records.

The Misys center will grant up to $10 million in health IT software. Organizations eligible to apply for the grants include local communities, regional health-care organizations, physicians' offices and home care agencies.

The deadline to submit grant applications to the Misys Center for Community Health Leadership is Dec. 31. According to a written statement released by the company on Wednesday, successful applicants will "demonstrate a commitment to sharing clinical data between medical professionals in hospitals, physician offices and home care agencies for the purpose of delivering therapeutic and diagnostic care."

Raleigh-based Misys Healthcare Systems, a division of London-based Misys plc, develops and sells health-care IT software. The company employs more than 970 full-time workers in the Triangle.
